This thread will then sleep for some time, a short period (e.g. 1/10th of a second). I am now running into a problem where each time I open a new browser tab, the loop is reset. Thus, it seems that the new JVM thread is a daemon thread that will not stop unless it is explicitly stopped. It is as if the new thread continuously runs itself. I am currently using netbeans 6.5 with a JDK 1.6 and it is WindowsXP. I will appreciate any help. Edit: I am new here and I would like to say that I am no java guru, I have been coding mostly with VB and Python. A: From this post I'd guess that your problem has nothing to do with java, but with Windows. Try running your code with a different OS.

Search, Filter, Sort â These are the most simple and powerful features on the site. Which search results are you looking for? Are they popular, or are they hard to find? Are they hot, or are they old? At MAMEMenu you can sort to find the best of the best. Filter allows you to select those kinds of items that may interest you. It allows me to put an old fight game in a subcategory of arcade games. Super Epix is the perfect example of what I'm looking for. It has a high score, a record to beat, a sound, a cutscene and it is available at Google Play. For arcade game, it uses the Mame Database to manage the list and the PlayStore to add them. The search function is a bit more complex, but you can clearly see that there are other games that are available in the site. Mame doesn't have the search function, so I created this one. All my games are playable, but unfortunately there are some problems. Click to expand... @Dirtboy, you can search games by genre, type or the developer. "Full MAME Emulator" is the full port of MAME that can also be used as a ZSNES wrapper. In other words, you can load files into MAME without the need to re-compile the game. @Dirtboy, you can search games by genre, type or the developer. It's all explained there, but to save you the trouble, I have done them for iOS and for Windows. I will be happy to see any additions on your side for other platforms. I bought a cheap Atari 2600 emulator for all my games. Im sure I could setup MAME on my PC to emulate anything, but I can't get it setup properly for ROMs and I'm too lazy. For all of the Mega Drive games that I have ported
