I'm trying to do the following:

#include void register(){ int list[5]; list[0] = 2; list[1] = 3; list[2] = 4; list[3] = 5; list[4] = 6;
printf("%d %d %d %d %d ",list[0],list[1],list[2],list[3],list[4]); return; } int main(){ register(list); return 0; } Compiler: $ g++ -W -Wall -pedantic -o register register.cpp It says: invalid conversion from 'int [5]' to 'int [5] Why? A: In C, arrays are only accessed through the address of their first element. If you want to use an array, you need to pass it as an address of its first element. void register(int list[5]) C will "automagically" know to interpret this as a pointer, and use it appropriately.
It will thus look like you are passing a pointer to int, which is of course not allowed. A: You can't pass an array directly. You would need to pass a pointer to an array. void register(int *list) { list[0] = 2; list[1] = 3; list[2] = 4; list[3] = 5; list[4] = 6; printf("%d %d %d %d %d
",list[0],list[1],list[2],list[3],list[4]); return; } int main(){ register(list); return 0
